

2nd Annual Brain Metastases Research and Emerging Therapy Conference

— Introduction

We are glad to welcome you back in Marseille for the 2nd Annual Conference on Brain Metastases. The successful edition of last year led us to organize once again this conference with a more European perspective this year just before EANO meeting.

Brain metastasis is a major public health problem. An alarming incidence of brain metastasis in patients with otherwise well controlled systemic cancer has drawn attention to this important, yet understudied, dimension of cancer problem. The prognosis of patients with brain metastasis is still poor and overall survival is around few months. Our ability to address this growing problem is hampered by meager advances in the treatment of brain metastasis, an elemental understanding of pathophysiological forces underlying brain metastases, inadequate model systems, reagents, and biospecimens, and a systematic failure to consider the impact of the blood brain barrier on drug distribution, as critical parameter in guiding cancer drug development.

One of the objectives of the second edition of the International Conference on Brain Metastases Research and Emerging therapies will be to described the clinical problem, identify the critical points of therapeutic failure and summarize the current state of knowledge of the genetics and biology of brain metastases. The overarching goal of the meeting is to generate a set of research priorities that would stimulate integrated scientific and clinical investigation directed at understanding basic processes of brain metastasis and translating such insights to clinical care as rapidly possible.

Canceropôle PACA will gather during this specific thematic meeting the best world known specialists of the domain under the direction of Prof. Philippe Métellus, Dr Anthony Gonçalves, Prof. Fabrice Barlési and Dr Agnès Richard-Tallet, from the Neurosurgery and Medical Oncology Department, at the University Hospital La Timone in Marseille and the Institut Paoli-Calmette Cancer Center.

We wish you a pleasant stay in Marseille and foremost safe travels.
